

God, Yet Man

Written by Philip C. Vinson
Monday, 07 July 2008 17:10 -

Jesus came and shed His blood, Did a miracle on blind eyes with a little mud.
He died so from sin I could be free, That's what He did for me.
It cost Christ so much to come and die.
He is now with the Father beyond the sky.
It was needful for Him to come,
Or there would be no salvation for anyone.
Who is like Jesus, God, yet man?
Who is able to do what He can?
He spoke the worlds into being by His word.
Now we must teach it until all have heard.
One day Christ will rule from sea to sea, What a wonderful place this earth will be.
God's glory one day will fill the earth,
For all those that have experienced the new birth.
One day satan will be in the pit for awhile, He will not walk down the church aisle, But be bound a thousand years.
We will be with Christ, no more tears.
The time will come when Christ, God's Son, Will rule the earth; righteousness has won.
We will be with Him. Plenty of time to rejoice, You will be glad if you made Him your choice.
One day the last war will be fought, Your suffering, will not have been for naught.
With the saints He will forever reign.
There will be a new earth, no more death or pain.