

The Latter Years

Written by Philip C. Vinson
Sunday, 29 June 2008 18:35 -

At age thirty, Jesus' ministry did begin.
He would preach His message over and over again.
He healed the sick, raise the dead, preach the gospel to the poor.
His mission in life has began, this we know for sure.
Now He began to walk the shores of Galilee,
He chose two brothers, then two more, that with Him would be.
Several others He did also choose, And of the twelve only one did He lose.
He was mighty in the word and in deed.
And from little the multitudes He did feed.
He came to seek and to save those that were lost, But to do so, it would be at a great cost.
Money from the mouth of a fish, His taxes were paid.
And the people found life by the statements that He made.
He walked with God in faith and in power,
He must do all the Father sent Him to do, this was His hour.
All that came to him He gladly met,
The water of life, the women at the well did get.
He lay sleeping in the bottom of the ship, Him they awoke.
And the stormy sea He calmed, by the words He spoke.
Jesus was always going about doing good,
But doubt and unbelief kept Him from doing all He could. But to others He would say, thy faith has made you whole, Then He was able to touch them body and soul.
He marveled at their unbelief and doubt.
And He preached, "Repent" He would shout.
Signs, wonders, and miracles Jesus did.
And the good news from the multitudes was not hid.
The hour has now come for Him to die, The truth He had preached, he did not lie.
The price was death. It must be paid.
Now the sacrifice for sin has been made.
His death is not the end of this story, He has returned to all his power, And to all his former glory.