

Broken Spirit

Written by Philip C. Vinson
Wednesday, 09 July 2008 17:43 -

From a youth you have really had a hard time, You have always been told you are not worth a dime.

Jesus never looks at it that way.

You are worth plenty; a great price He had to pay.

You will never amount to anything, you have been told.

They just want to fit you and keep you in their mold.

Jesus never looks at it that way.

A better life He wants to give you today.

They say you never do anything right,

And you are so worthless, I want you out of my sight.

Jesus never looks at it that way.

You are someone special He would say.

You are told you are not worth the salt that goes in your bread.

And oh, how it hurts when all these things are said.

Jesus never looks at it that way.

I love you, so does it matter what they say?

There will never be anyone in your life to care.

There will never be anyone their life with you will share.

Jesus never looks at it that way.

He will gladly give you someone special today.

Things will always be as they have been for you, Regardless of what you think or try to do.

Jesus never looks at it that way.

For you He would love to give you a new beginning today.

After all those lies you have been told, And on them all you have been sold.

From all these things you can be free.